Newspapers Gave Shaver a New Name

Little Rock, Jan. 20—(P)—Lt. Gov. James Levesque Shaver is a victim of the press and he frankly admits he thinks there's nothing he can do about it.

Most of the press and, by now the general public, think Shaver's nickname is "Beck." It has been published that way for more years than the lieutenant governor can remember.

But it really is "Beck."

"I was named for the late Jim Levesque, long time circuit clerk of Cross county and close friend of 'My brother, two years older than I, couldn't say 'Levesque.' He tried, as a little boy, and the nearest he could approach it was 'Beck.' So the family and most of my boyhood friends took it up."

"Then I got into politics and strangers, hearing the nick name would misunderstand and give it all sorts of twists. Some of them called me 'Buck,' some 'Beck,' some 'Vex' and some 'Vest.'"

"But 'Beck' was the way the newsmen understood it and that's the way it got into print. Now's a short visit."

Mrs. William Johnson is returning to her home in Prescott today after spending the first of the week with the Leo Robins.

Mrs. Frank Malone of Sherman, Texas is the guest of relatives and friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Robins have gone to Little Rock for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Riels of Texarkana were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Franklin.

Mrs. V. F. Williams, who has been in the city for the past 18 months departed during the weekend for Atlanta, Ga. to join Mr. Williams. She was an employee of the Southwestern Proving Ground.

El Dorado
Mr. and Mrs. Mac McCormick of El Dorado were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Franklin and daughter, Helen Marie, have returned from a visit with relatives in El Dorado.

Births
Mr. and Mrs. Theron Bright (nee Noel Huckabee) of Lewisville announce the arrival of twin sons at the Josephine hospital, January 19. They have been given the names, Ronald Theron and Donald Clyde.

Personal
Friends of Mrs. Vonell Pritchett will regret to know that she is a patient in the Julia Chester hospital, having undergone a major operation Monday.

Practically all my friends and acquaintances use 'Beck.' There's not a thing I can do about it.

However, Shaver still prefers "Beck" and that's the way he had his official stationery printed.

HANK EASES UP

CHAPTER XV

THAT was the way it went for the next two periods. Captain Pugh did his best. He blew three fouls against Henry Prentiss, and the Whirlwinds made good their three free tries for goal. But that was virtually all their solace. For Henry Prentiss matched those three, and made three more for good measure.

In the brief pause after the second period which was given for the change of horses, he found Cynthia standing at the end of the field frowning at him.

"Take it easy, Hank," she said.

"Hello, Pretty." And, to the groom, "Give me Gaylark this time."

"I said take it easy, Hank. Somebody is going to get hurt. That's not our kind of game, you know."

His grin was exasperating. "O. K., Pretty."

And he was in the saddle and off down the field, swinging his stick in wide circles and yelling, "Come on, guys. Let's play polo."

At the end of the third period—which was, too, the beginning of the 10-minute rest period—Henry Prentiss received a splendid ovation from the stands, most particularly from those delighted spectators who had bet on the Clover side to win.

He bounced out of the saddle, and threw his reins to the groom, and tumbled down to sit on the grass, his legs outstretched, his arms making a rigid prop for his body behind him. Mike brought him a Scotch and soda, and he finished it in a draught.

Captain Pugh moved toward him, frowning heavily, but he was not ahead of Cynthia. She looked down at him for a long instant, her hands on her hips and no smile upon her face. Then she said, "Get up and come with me."

He laughed at her. But he got up and walked with her toward the station wagon, and both of them got in the wagon. She looked at him.

"I'm absolutely ashamed of you," she said, very quiet and cold. "And you can get that idiot's grin off of your face for good."

These heights begin in the region of Tahrana on the east and curve to the south and southwest of Tripoli to the Algerian border.

Sweeping the Axis forces northward toward Tripoli, the Eighth Army gathered prisoners, guns and vehicles as it moved forward.

The northern wing of General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th Army, reported at Zliten yesterday, moved forward during the day and by evening was closing in on Homs along the coastal road.

However, Shaver still prefers "Beck" and that's the way he had his official stationery printed.

The southern wing, moving toward Tripoli along an inland road, was on the approaches to Tahrana at about the same time. This wing had been reported advancing toward Tahrana yesterday.

Allied air squadrons, operating from advanced air bases, pounded Rommel's retreating Army as it moved away from the overwhelming power of the Eighth Army.

(The Berlin radio said today British paratroopers were being dropped behind Rommel's lines to harass communications.)

For the last 24 hours, the communique said, fighter-bombers and bombers have maintained a continuous pressure on the columns moving westward from Tahrana.

The fact these Axis columns were moving westward instead of northward toward Tripoli, might indicate the southern flank of Rommel's Army planned to bypass Tripoli completely.

Monday night, the airfield at Castel Benito, 13 miles south of Tripoli, was heavily attacked and large fires were started among dispersed aircraft, it was stated.

The same night a large ship was attacked by torpedo aircraft west of Sicily and "left in a sinking condition," it was reported.

Heavy bombers returned to Tripoli yesterday to attack the harbor and another formation raided the harbor at Sousse in Tunisia; Axis formations were engaged by Axis fighters, three of which were shot down, the communique said.

"A few days ago I read that he had married this model. So I got a gun and I went up to the Pacific Union Club—I knew he was a member and waited for him. I kept waiting, and tonight I saw him leave the club and walk over to his car parked at the rear. So I shot at him."

The armies thrusting down from the Voronezh front and pushing west from the Don bend now had gained the encirclement of troops in an area between Kamenka and Rossosh and bounded by the Don river and the Moscow-Rostov railway, the Russians said.

The capture since last Wednesday of 32,000 prisoners—of whom only 2,500 were Germans—was announced officially. The others were 27,500 Hungarians and 22,000 Italians.

By the Associated Press
Washington, Jan. 20—(P)—The spectacle of a presidential appointment to a diplomatic post undergoing a test for fitness drew nationwide attention today as the Senate Foreign Relations committee called witnesses for and against the nomination of Edward J. Flynn as minister to Australia.

With the former Democratic national chairman invited to take the stand in his own behalf, the hearing brought virtually an unprecedented public clamor for admission.

Trying for attention, however, at least from official Washington, are strikers' reactions to President Roosevelt's ultimatum demanding a return to work in Pennsylvania's hard coal fields tomorrow, and progress of an OPA campaign to obliterate what it termed a scattered black market in meat.

"I did all right, didn't I?" he asked. The old, careless grin was back again now, and he wanted her response to it.

"Yes, Thanks," she said. But not as she really meant it.

"Not satisfied, Pretty?"

"To tell the truth, you make me feel sort of foolish."

"As how?"

"I didn't mean for you to quit cold. Did you do that just for spite—just to make me feel guilty?"

"Were you calling me a coward?"

"Last thing I ever would think of. You know that."

"What happened, then?"

"I lost interest."

"I guess I should have stayed out of it."

"I'm glad you didn't."

"The people who lost money will be saying nasty things."

"Not to my face." He laughed again, with genuine gaiety. And she could not resist it. She slapped him on the knee.

"You're about 13 years old," she said.

"But strong and well-developed for my age."

They drew up in front of his cottage. They laughed again, and he got out.

"Thank you, Miss Merriwether," he said.

"It must be like I always heard," she said, and shook her head sadly.

"Yeah?"

"Tenors and southpaws—crazy people."

She let in the clutch. "Come on over when you get your face scrubbed," she said.

"Will do." He waved, and she was gone.

Madge Bellamy Central Figure in Shooting

By RICHARD CUSHIG

San Francisco, Jan. 20—(P)—Soft eyed Madge Bellamy of the silent films today found herself the central figure in a real life melodrama of gunfire and a broken heart reeled off before a goggle eyed audience of two behind the swanky Pacific Union club on Nob Hill.

Trembling a bit and sniffing into a handkerchief, she admitted, Police Inspector Frank Lucey said, that she fired three shots last night at a Stanwood Murphy, socially prominent lumber company executive with whom she had been going for years. A felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon was filed against the former actress.

She was enraged, she said, because Murphy had married another, the other being June Alma, New York model, to whom he was wed in Baltimore recently.

Inspector Lucey said Miss Bellamy gave him this account of her activities prior to the shooting:

Carrying a little pistol that "has been in the family for years," Miss Bellamy came to San Francisco last Sunday knowing Murphy and his wife would be returning here to make their home.

She waited two days, and then she saw a bunch of lilies in the window of the Murphy apartment, indicating the bride and groom were home.

The former film star located Murphy at his club and waited for him to emerge from the rear exit. Three shots, loud but slightly inaccurate, ricocheted around the classic brownstone mansion as Murphy approached his car, missing him by a matter of yards. Two of the bullets struck the car, and Murphy scrambled for cover.

Miss Bellamy then surrendered meekly to one of two startled bystanders. At the city prison she was booked under her real name, Margaret Philpot, and gave her age as 35.

She was lodged in jail while her attorney, Jake Ehrlich, sought her release on bail.

Miss Bellamy looked youthful and fresh with her long yellow hair (it was black in her movie days) and sports outfit under a mink coat. She said she had met Murphy at Palm Springs, Calif., about five years ago when they were seeking divorces, and fell in love with him a year later.

About six months ago, she said, Murphy telephoned her that he was getting married.

"I told him flatly I just couldn't take that," she related. "We had been going together for five years and he had kept telling me he would marry me as soon as he got a divorce. That was last April. In June I came to San Francisco and began looking for him."

"A few days ago I read that he had married this model. So I got a gun and I went up to the Pacific Union Club—I knew he was a member and waited for him. I kept waiting, and tonight I saw him leave the club and walk over to his car parked at the rear. So I shot at him."

Rickenbacker to Be Baseball Speaker

New York, Jan. 20—(P)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker will be the principal speaker at the New York Baseball Writers' dinner Feb. 7 it was announced yesterday.

Rickenbacker, famous automobile racer and World War ace, recently was rescued after drifting on the Pacific ocean for nearly three weeks when his plane was forced down while on a mission for the Army.

While congress saw prospects of a Democratic internal squabble dispelled by a party vote to keep the only American labor congressman from a major committee, concern was manifested in various other quarters over the threat of a new sugar shortage and failure of government officials to agree on which agency should pass judgment on railway wage demands.

Meanwhile, in the lofty-ceilinged caucus room of the Senate office building Flynn was called to reply to a series of accusations, concerning his past conduct, principally from Senator Bridges (R-N.H.).

The hearing schedule also called for statements by state department officials.

Bridges' charges, characterized by Flynn as "wanton falsehoods," were voiced in a Senate speech Thursday. The Republican contended that Flynn, while sheriff of Bronx county, New York, appointed "Dutch Schultz, noted criminal and murderer," a deputy; and that Flynn's Lake Mahopac, N. Y., estate was paved with New York city-owned materials and labor.

No Absenteeism

Perfect attendance, no tardiness, excellent workmanship and good attitude toward fellow workers won Helen Priest, Detroit war worker, a trip to New York and set an excellent example for the rest of us to follow.

Third Daughter for Princess of Netherlands

Ottawa, Jan. 20—(P)—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands gave birth to her third daughter last night, a seven pound 12 ounce princess for whom a little bit of Canada was proclaimed a little bit of Holland so that she need not be born on foreign soil.

The four-room hospital suite was declared by the Dominion government extra-territorial for the confinement period. For all that, the little princess was the first member of the royal house of Orange to be born outside the Netherlands and she is the first member of any European royal family to be born in North America.

Her father, Prince Bernhard, announced she looks splendid. "He came from London last week to be here at the child's birth."

Queen Wilhelmina in London, was expected to travel to Canada for the child's christening at some future date. She was notified by the father after the child's birth.

Also the 33-year-old Crown Princess would have become automatically her heir to the throne with the birth of a third daughter, the succession remains unchanged. The Princess Beatrix, who will be 5 on Jan. 31, is next to her mother in the throne succession. The second princess is Irene, aged 3.

The last postscript listed the prices the lad thought soldiers should pay for their drinks and warrented them to pay these figures "only—no more."

The schoolboy closed his letter with "Vive L'Amerique, Vive La France." He did not sign his name but perilled on the letter a note that "I have an uncle who is in New York." He gave his uncle's name as "Dr. Nathan Huberman, 415 Hart Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

American soldiers somewhere in China are as great an attraction to the Chinese as are the sights of that ancient land to the Yanks. And there's a touch of the old China in the pagoda being passed by another group of soldiers, lower right.

VICTORY PATTERNS

... — IN THE AIR ... — ON THE LAND
With enough planes in the air, the Allies can be sure of victory in the skies. Aerial victory will be insufficient, however, unless it is backed up with mammoth quantities of food—giving strength to soldiers, civilians, and oppressed people liberated from Nazi chains. Contour farming is a modern way to help assure this food. Farmers all over the nation report bigger yields of war crops through contour farming. It's the victory pattern for the land.

In one month of counterattack this winter the Russians have regained even more territory than they did in the initial period of their 1941-42 offensive. Note that Nazis made relatively no gains in north during 1942 and have lost nearly half of area seized in south.

Layden Drops Charges Against Sammy Baugh

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP)—Elmer Layden, commissioner of the National Football League, said today the case of Sammy Baugh, charged with wilful failure to attend and participate in a benefit game at Philadelphia Dec. 27 between his Washington Redskins teammates and a league all star squad, had been "dropped for want of evidence in substantiation."

"Investigation has proved conclusively," Layden declared in a statement, "that Baugh did intend to play," that "he was sick at the time he was originally scheduled to leave his Rotan, Tex., ranch," and that transportation difficulties thwarted his efforts to reach Philadelphia the day before the game.

"So there was 'no alternative,'" Layden said, "except to find Baugh not guilty of any violation of good faith or of any disregard for his obligation to the public, the league and to his fellow players. . . . The publicity and subsequent investigation attendant upon Baugh's failure to appear is deemed sufficient punishment under the circumstances."

"At most," the statement added, "Baugh may have been careless in delegating the duty of notifying club officials of his inability to leave on Dec. 22, as originally scheduled, to player Dick Todd of Washington, who presumed his cancellation of Baugh's plane reservations would serve as notification to club officials."

The absence of Baugh, star passer and punter of the champion Redskins, created a furore on the eve of the game. The game, proceeds from which went to the United Seamen's service, was won by the All Stars, 17-14.

Polio Victims Win Active War Roles as Fighters And on Production Front

The crutch beside the machine of Harry Foster, above, tells its own story of his fight against infantile paralysis. But he won the fight and now makes vital wartime electrical material for our armed forces. Mary Nappi, right, of New Haven, Conn., was crippled by polio in infancy—but she's now a seamstress for victory, sewing Army uniforms.

By NEA Service
New York, Jan. 16 — America is being speeded on her march to victory by thousands of "veterans" who, with the help of your dimes and dollars, have been victorious in their own private war with infantile paralysis.

Some polio victims have been able to meet the Army's physical requirements, and are now in service. Their number, of course, is small. But there are many others whose special skills and special brand of courage have made them highly valuable members of America's home front army.

They are helping to turn out airplanes, gliders, delicate bombights and gun-sights. They're drawing war maps, making uniforms and insignia, and doing countless other jobs essential to winning the war.

Reasons for Pride
Almost all of these workers and fighters have been helped toward rehabilitation by the National Foundation's chapters (see p. 10), which has seen three of its patients accepted for military service in the past few months. The latest one was Philip Hawco, 18, of Quincy, who came through the Army Air Corps' rigid tests with flying colors. The others are Edward Fitzgerald, also of Quincy, and Edward Eaton of Weymouth.

On the West Coast, Orville Davis of Bellingham, Wash., was recently inducted into the Army, although he was stricken with polio only a year ago. Prompt treatment by the Watson County Foundation chapter brought swift recovery.

The wartime jobs of more severely affected polio victims are far from routine. In New York City, for instance, some are employed by an optical firm in work so secret that the company's name has even been removed from office doors and lobby directory. At first one paralysis victim obtained work there, and he did such a superior job that the company wished to hire others. Now he has five of them—all experts.

Holds Triple Job
St. Louis has several handicapped young men holding down important jobs with Diesel engine company. One on legrases and crutches makes engine test calculations, does engineering record work, serves as a partime Navy personnel instructor, and drives himself and fellow workers to and from the job. Contributions to the President's Birthday Ball fund provided a series of operations and physiotherapy treatment for Marion Littlejohn of Wichita, Kan. Stricken when she was nine, he is now able to walk without crutches, and works a nine-hour day in a glider factory.

Navy material comes under the direction of a polio victim. He is Robert Kelly, foreman of the largest unit of multith machines in the government service. Elsewhere men on canes and crutches, men with back and leg and ankle braces, are working as welders, drill operators, shippers, inspectors and accountants.

Women Help, Too
Nor is the war effort of polio victims is strictly masculine contribution. In New York, Justine Flores, who walks with crutches, travels miles by subway and bus to her job of sewing insignia for the Navy. Mary Nappi of New Haven, Conn., whose legs and one hand were crippled in infancy, is an expert finisher of Army uniforms.

Public generosity as well as personal courage has made possible the important work of these handicapped men and women. And the National Foundation predicts that this year's fund-raising drive from Jan. 15 to the President's birthday on Jan. 30, will find Americans even more generous.

For the public will know that their dimes and dollars this year not only aid paralysis sufferers, but actively contribute much needed manpower to the arsenal of democracy.

Writer to Head The Garden for Duration

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
New York, Jan. 20 — (AP) — Because his wise faints as they tried to jam their way through a crowd blocking the doorway of a band-box basketball gymnasium in 1934, Ned Irish today is the "duration" president of Madison Square Garden.

"Why doesn't somebody take these games to the Garden," demanded the per-urged young husband back there in the days of plentiful steaks and gasoline, "then everyone would have room."

When nobody took up the idea, Irish, then the basketball reporter for the New York World, followed his own suggestion.

From the very start his cage doubleheaders in the huge Eighth Avenue arena proved successful and so there wasn't much question concerning who would succeed Brig. Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick when the five-man board of directors proved too cumbersome.

The board, of which Irish was a member, was set up when Kilpatrick was called to the colors early in 1942.

Irish, at 38, is the fourth president of the huge mid-town arena. Richard opened in 1925 and into which 18,394 spectators were lured recently for a cage doubleheader. Richard was the Garden's head until his death and was followed by William F. Carey and Kilpatrick.

His new duties are likely to keep Irish from making his annual tours totalling 4,000 miles during which

Petty Captain of American Trap Shooting Team

Vandlia, Oa., Jan. 20 — (AP) — Julius Petty of England, Ark., the No. 1 star of the 1942 Grand American trapshoot, was selected captain today of the All-American trapshooting team.

The selections were made by Jimmy Robinson of Minneapolis, former statistician of the Amateur trapshooting Association, and shooting editor of Sports Field magazine.

Petty, a trapper, fur buyer and crack field shot, won the all-around championship at the "rounding grand" by breaking 210 out of 950 handicap, doubles and 16-yard targets. He broke 100 straight to tie for the "champion of champions" title in the race between taste champions and broke 200 straight from 16 yards to win the class AA crown from the nation's top-flight marksmen.

Others named on Robinson's All-America included:

Tugwell Administration In Puerto Rico Is Called "Spendthrift Experiment"

By S. BURTON HEATH
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Washington, Jan. 20.—The misery that exists in Puerto Rico today, and the greater hardships that appear inevitable tomorrow, unless the Federal government subsidizes the island heavily — both in money and in allocation of critical shipping — have been all but lost sight of in the bitter controversy raging about Governor Rexford Guy Tugwell.

It may be possible, but it is not easy to find anybody connected with Puerto Rico who even pretends to be unbiased about the former brain-truster. He seems to be one of those men whom some love, others hate, but none ignores.

Tugwell and Luis Munoz Marin, leader of the dominant Popular party, are economic and political enemies. Their critics are about evenly divided whether Tugwell is using Munoz Marin, or the Puerto Rican is using the Governor. At any rate, with very minor divergences, they are following the same path.

Extreme Program
There is the land subdivision program, described earlier, which is a principal bone of contention. It is not really their baby. It was written into basic American law when McKinley, conservative Republican, was President. Only the allegedly extreme application is theirs.

Discussion with numerous partisans and some relatively disinterested observers suggests that it is Tugwell's manner and method, principally, which have antagonized so many so bitterly.

The Tugwell-Munoz Marin program itself, consists largely of a series of authorities designed to acquire and operate transportation, communications and water resources, and so finance development of new ventures intended to supplement sugar as a source of insular income.

Except for the desire to get rid of the big property-holdings — Tugwell is interested only in the non-resident-owned, while Munoz Marin would split up all large holdings — none of this program is particularly radical even by rather conservative standards.

It is not, therefore, aimed at having the Government take over the products of individual or corporate enterprise, but rather at developing, with Government aid, what private capital can not afford to open up.

However, Governor Tugwell's critics consider it significant that he reported to Interior Secretary Ickes, concerning the land distribution scheme: "It has obvious implications for the South."

This is part of the basis for insular feeling that Puerto Rico is being used as a guinea pig — and basis of an argument that the South should use its influence to stop Tugwell.

It is alleged that Tugwell's administration is spendthrift, both with insular and with Federal moneys. And episodes are described in support of the claim that both Tugwell and Munoz Marin are hypocritical when they say that the underdog is their prime concern.

"News Coordinator"
For example, Commissioner of Public Instruction Gaillard is quoted as saying publicly that with $50,000 more a year he could give education to all who wanted it. Yet the argument runs, Mr. Tugwell has allocated $20,000 to a Coordinator of News, who is claimed to be actually a Minister of Propaganda; and meanwhile the Governor spent $30,000 in nine months on upkeep of the Executive Mansion, exclusive of servants, etc., contrasted with $17,000 spent by his predecessor, Admiral Leahy, in a full year.

The Coalition government built four large, well-equipped district free hospitals. Congress, under Populares control with Coalition acquiescence, voted $2,000,000 for three more, to complete the program. Until warned that it was illegal, Tugwell tried to veto this.

Likewise, a $100,000 appropriation to close a dangerous open sewer at Arceibo, a district capital with an oversized slum area, was cut by Tugwell to $25,000 until the attorney-general again warned him that such action was illegal.

The attorney-general involved in these two episodes, Judge George A. Malcolm, has been ousted, and now is in the United States.

By ROBBIN COONS

Walter Pidgeon and William Powell were ready and willing to do radio broadcasts at $5,000 a piece, pay the taxes on same, and turn the proceeds over for the big Hollywood party for soldiers on the desert, thus defraying the cost quickly. But they ran into that "25,000 salary limit" and the money had to be raised the hard way, by soliciting individuals in the industry for donations. Anyway, the party was a big success. . . .

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, the arch-Nazi villain of "The Moon is Down," is keeping his record unbroken — in a movie. "Several times," he says, "I have had a wife who died — the implication being worse. I played Maureen O'Hara in 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame' but I didn't catch her — if I had it would have saved RKO a lot of money. . . . By ending the movie, of course, before it ran deeper into the red! . . .

Lee L. Cobb, one of the Norwegian heroes of the same movie, has another kind of record. He has never played a young man, though he has just turned 31. Cobb has turned a handicap into an acting asset. He can slip any kind of hair over his own completely bald pate.

"I started losing hair at 18," he says, "and I was bald at 22. It was a great blow to a fellow who wanted to be an actor — who ever heard of a bald-headed juvenile? But being bald, I was forced into character roles. Before that, they always said I was too young for all the roles I sought."
